

DEBS' TRIAL AGAIN
BEFORE THE COURTCONTEMPT CASE RESUMED IN JUDGE WOODS' COURT.

Milchrist's Opening Talk—Order in Which the Attorneys Will Make Their Pleas in the Big Hearing—Evidence of Reporters Revived—History of the Case.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—A formidable array of counsel appeared in Judge Wood's court yesterday morning when the contempt case against Debs, Howard, Keliher, Rogers and others of the American Railway union was resumed in the district court room in the Monadnock block. For the government appeared United States District Attorney Dixon and his assistant, Moritz Rosenthal, Edward Walker and ex-United States District Attorney Milchrist. John S. Miller and A. Bancroft represented the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe. John D. Fish of Milwaukee, attorneys for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, was also present.

For the defense were Clarence S. Darrow, W. W. Erwin, W. A. Shumaker and Mr. Geeting. Mr. Gregory was not present, but it was stated that he would appear to-morrow. Debs, Howard and Rogers came into court after 11 o'clock. The other defendants were not present.

Mr. Milchrist opened for the government. "Some time in July," he said, "it became apparent to the officers of the government that a bill should be filed to restrain certain persons from interfering with the conduct of interstate commerce and the handling of the United States mails. Previous to that time some of the men had been called out on the Illinois Central by men in the American Railway Union. On July 2, by direction of the attorney-general of the United States, a bill was filed, and a restraining writ issued against Debs, Howard, Keliher, Rogers and others.

Mr. Milchrist reviewed the allegations of the bill, the information and the answer of the defendants to the contempt proceedings. He read the allegations and answer referring to the strike on the Illinois Central and the Rock Island, which, he charged, had been directly ordered by President Debs and the other officers of the union. The organization of unions and the carrying of the strike into the western states was read and the answer of the defendants denying that the officers of the local unions were subject to the control of the American Railway Union.

Mr. Milchrist then read an article from that paper headed "The Big Strike," and giving a sketch of how the boycott and strike were being conducted and speaking of Rogers as attending "to the allotment of speakers and editorial work of the Railway Times made necessary to set off the infernal forces of the majority of the Chicago press." He read from the paper of July 10, in which Rogers was described as the editor, and other references showing his editorial connection, as well as the evidence of Henry O. Shepherd, who printed the Railway Times.

The address "to the American public" dated "Headquarters American Railway Union, Cook county Jail, July 23," was read in part by the speaker to show the defiance of the court, and the signatures including that of Rogers, "editor of the Railway Times."

The evidence of the newspaper reporters who had talked with Debs and others on the injunction was read. Burns had said to one that "they would simply laugh at the injunction, that they had not done anything unlawful, that they had a right to strike peacefully."

The latter part of the afternoon was taken up with the beginning of Mr. Bancroft's opening for the Santa Fe. It was a powerful arraignment of the defendants, but consisted mainly in an effective grouping of their telegrams, which he read to show their contemptuous disregard of the authority of the court and their responsibility for all the scenes of disorder and violence which attended the boycott. He will resume his argument this morning.

BODY OF KAFFIRS UP IN ARMS.

Threatening To Attack Lourenzo Marquez—Leaders of the Transvaal Anxious.

LOURENZO MARQUEZ, Delagoa Bay, Sept. 26.—Several thousand Kaffirs are threatening to attack this town. The government has distributed arms among the white population for defense. Serious trouble is expected. Lourenzo Marquez is a walled Portuguese town on the north side of Delagoa Bay. It has a good harbor, which gives it considerable importance in the trade with the Transvaal. The town has a population of about 3,000, and is protected by a number of roughly constructed old forts. The town is situated in the southern portion of the province of Portuguese East Africa, which extends along the coast from the mouth of the Zambezi to Delagoa Bay, and is bounded in by Mashonaland, Matabeleland and the Transvaal.

The Transvaal leaders have long been anxious to secure control of the Delagoa Bay railroad, and they have also been ambitious to have a seaport. Lourenzo Marquez preferred. With this object in view the Boers recently sent the sum of $250,000 to London in order to purchase bonds which Portugal is expected to issue as soon as the Berne arbitrators have decided the question of boundaries. A few days ago, on Sept. 12, advices from Pretoria said that the Transvaal government had acquired the prior rights in Delagoa bay, including control of the port dues, thus giving the Transvaal a commanding position and free access to the sea.

TRIUMPH OF CHRISTIANITY.

Report of Unitarian Council on Chicago Parliament of Religions.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The national conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches held a communion service yesterday, conducted by Rev. Edward Everett Hale of Boston. Resolutions in memory of George William Curtis, ex-president of the conference, were adopted.

Rev. Dr. Hale, chairman, presented the report of the council, in which the conference in Chicago was referred to and the parliament of religions spoken of as the triumph of Christianity based on Unitarian principles. The council reported thirty-four clergymen as having been received into fellowship. The council received with regret the statements of defiance of law and order by popular outrages to which the name of lynch law has been given. It was also reported that the increase of members of Unitarian churches is in rather larger proportion than the increase of population of country.

TO CHANGE WRITING IN LOCAL SCHOOLS

VERTICAL MAY BE USED IN-STEAD OF OBLIQUE.

Janesville Board of Education Thinking of Making the Change Already Made in the Chicago Public Schools—Time Will Be Given For Thorough Trial.

Faddism in the public schools has received hard blows from the press at large of late, but an idea in regard to changing the style of handwriting from the oblique to the vertical has been received by both the press and public this year. The change has been adopted in all the Chicago schools and now the Janesville board of education is thinking of making it the style in the public school.

The change will not be made all at once, however, if made at all, but will be introduced by degrees. The experiments in other towns will be watched and the results weighed.
Professor Mayne has put the subject on his programme for discussion at teachers' meetings and if the new system proves its worth it will be universally taught.

Concerning the new system the Chicago Herald says editorially: In substituting vertical for oblique handwriting in the public schools, the board of education has shown common sense, provided instructions in the new style shall be so efficient as to make it successful.

The old idea that the proper way to write was to sit sideways at the desk
or table and then make slanting strokes is so fixed that it will be difficult to eradicate it. It was perpetuated by the script type long in favor and still chosen for typographical affections and fads.

Fashion still carries the oblique hand to an extreme of illegibility and monomania. The high-priced and low brained young ladies' boarding schools would be discredited among themselves if any of their graduates wrote more legibly than Horace Greeley. But Horace's cramp was due to habitual haste inspired by excessive industry and a surplus of ideas. The young ladies' cramp is due to misdirected training and poverty of ideas.

The promoters of the vertical copies claim that they will insist upon children sitting perfectly straight while learning to write the perpendicular. They will be contributing to the future shapeliness
as well as health of the pupils, and they also preserve a normal angle for reading, for it is undoubtedly true that the too close concentration of the sight upon slates and copy books in childhood hastens decay of the optic nerve and makes an abnormal proximity of the eye to print inevitable.

One thing more, however, will be the supreme test of the experiment of vertical writing. It makes little difference of what angle, if there be an angle, a child writes, provided he writes clearly. If learning to write vertically shall not assure clear handwriting, it is a foredoomed failure.
Everything will depend upon the correct development of the power of sight
at the necessary distance if the child sit upright and upon the concurrent training of his manual muscles as to insure uniformity and regularity in the strokes to make his pen work clear.

WHY DR. PLANTZ DIDN'T STAY HERE.

Preached for a Friend and Then Remained in the Ministry.

But for a chance argument Dr.
Samuel Plantz, the new president of Lawrence University, would probably be practicing law in Janesville. While in college the doctor had determined upon law as his future career, and made arrangements with a leading legal firm of Janesville. A chum of Dr. Plantz's, now an eminent Wisconsin minister, had made arrangements to fill the pulpit of a church in a neighboring town but received a telegram calling him to the funeral of a dear friend. He and Dr. Plantz had lately debated a question of doctrine before the society and Dr. Plantz had made a very powerful argument, so he got Plantz to elaborate and extend his argument, make of it a sermon
and deliver it before the preacher's congregation, and he has been preaching ever since.

Thought to be Hypnotized.

Dr. Herbert Flint, the mesmerist, who will play in Janesville soon now has a sensational case on hand. Miss Mabel Briggs, a seventeen year old Eau Claire girl was decoyed from home three weeks ago, kept a prisoner a day and a night and finally found by her father and a police officer.
The girl had been ill-treated by two or more parties who will be under arrest in a few days. It is believed that the girl was hypnotized by one of the parties who has made a practice of mesmerism and the case will present features entirely new to medical jurisprudence. Dr. Flint was called at the request of the authorities to examine the girl and has laid the foundation for this part of the case.

BUGGIES AUCTIONED OFF CHEAP.

Assignee Conrad Disposes of the Empire
Cross Springs Co's. Stock.

Assignee Conrad disposed of a large number of road wagons and buggies at the Empire Cross Springs Co's.
auction. The vehicles were stored in one of Mr. Conrad's buildings on Court Street bridge. The whole lot were sold to Nowlan & Peters for $1,401, the only other bid being that of Attorney T. S. Nolan, $1,400. The property inventoried at a much larger sum. The vehicles are removed to the shops of the Empire Cross Springs Co.
on South River street, and John W.
Richardson was appointed agent by Nowlan & Peters to sell the same.

A PHOTOGRAPHER MAY LEAVE.

A Very Short Time In Which to Get Some Of His Noted Work.

Charles F. Glass, the veteran photographer, has received several offers for his gallery and is likely to sell before the close of the year. Ever since 1873 he has made Janesville's photographs and throughout the state he has been noted for his excellent likenesses. His success in securing characteristic and faithful portraits has been a strong point in his work and many will wish to avail themselves of his skill before he leaves the gallery.
The time is short, however, as the transfer may be decided upon at any time.

SMALL FIRE ON RACE STREET.

Sparks From a Railroad Engine Cause a Ten Dollar Blaze This Morning.

The two-story brick dwelling at the corner of Race and North Franklin streets, owned by George A. Warren, was damaged by fire this morning.
An alarm was turned on a few minutes after 11 o'clock, and the fire department quickly extinguished the blaze. The fire was set from sparks from a passing locomotive, the house being located very near the track. Ten dollars will cover the loss.

COUNCIL TO OPEN PAVING BIDS.

Special Meeting Tonight Will Consider the East Milwaukee Street Contract.

The common council will hold a special meeting this evening for the purpose of taking further action in relation to paving East Milwaukee
street, from Main to Division street.
Bids will be opened, and it is thought the contract for doing the work will be awarded. In case the contract is let the paving will be completed by November 1.

MAIN STREET PAVING GOES UNDER

Not Until Next Spring Will Blocks Be Laid
—More Time Wanted.

It is hinted that North Main street
will not be paved until next season.
A majority of the property owners on that part of the street to be paved favor the improvement, but some think it better to postpone it until next spring, because a number who own property to be improved have already been to considerable expense
in paving other streets.

BAT FACTORY HAS ITS OWN DYNAMO

Electric Lights Put in Operation by Howe
Brothers Last Night.

Howe Brothers' cotton bat and mattress factory, on North River street, beamed with incandescent lights last night. The Howes have just put in a dynamo of their own, and the machine was switched on for the first time last night. The factory is doing a good business and is kept running until 9 o'clock each evening.

B. F. LANDIS NOT THE OHIO BANDIT

BUCKEYE AUTHORITIES CAN-NOT IDENTIFY HIM.

Former Janesville Cigar Man Who
Was Charged With Being the Head of an Organized Gang of Horse Thieves, Now Has a Chance
To Turn the Tables.

B. F. Landis, the former Janesville cigar man who was arrested for an alleged crime in Ohio which they said he committed several years ago, is now having an inning. When the officers took him back to the Buckeye state they were sure they had their man but when they arrived at the scene of the alleged misdeed they could not identify him. He was charged with being the leader of an organized gang of horse thieves
and it was said that he had once broken out of the penitentiary. When the officers arrested him at Oshkosh
they said that he made a bold attempt to get his revolver but was prevented.
He was said to be a desperate bandit and when he was taken back they put chains and handcuffs enough on him to hold an ox team. Now that they cannot make sure that he is the guilty party he has a good chance to make it hot for them.

CROPS BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

Pastures Have Revived Surprisingly Since
the Rains of Last Week.

Good rains reported from all sections of the state, and the soil is now in excellent condition. Fall plowing is well advanced, and in the south half of the state seeding is about completed, while in the more northern counties that portion of the work is being pushed forward rapidly. Some of the seed sown is already up and an even stand is reported.

Corn is about all cut and considerable has been husked. The crop although light is generally turning out better than was expected two weeks ago.

Some fields are being idled, though some fields are yet green and appear to need more time in which to mature.
The crop is very uneven. Some correspondents report a fair yield and others say the crop is a failure. The reports from Eau Claire county state that the yield is all the way from nothing to 100 bushels per acre. Taking the state through the potato crop is turning out better than was expected.

Pastures now have a green and spring-like appearance, feed is abundant, the condition of stock is improving and as a consequence there has been a steady increase in the flow of milk. Clover seed is reported a light crop and many fields are not worth cutting.

Sugar cane yields well though not large.

Frosts occurred on the 18th, 19th, and 24th, but as all crops are out of the way of damage, little was done.

The Waupaca county correspondent
reports as follows: "Considering all crops, grain, hay, potatoes, corn, etc.,
the season has been fairly prosperous
with present prices."

SULPHUR CAUSED A FIRE ALARM

Smoke Meant to Kill Flies Drew Out the Department.

A dense smoke in Archie Reid &
Co's. dry goods store last evening, caused an alarm of fire to be turned in from box 28. Sulphur was being burned in the store to kill flies, and parties passing the store seeing the dense smoke through the windows, concluded the store was on fire and acted accordingly. A large and excited crowd quickly congregated.

vicinity will attend. The Ladies Aid Society will meet on Thursday afternoon of next week with Mrs. A. M.

THREE HARDWARE STORES
HAVE BEEN LOOTED.

C. P. Drake & Company, of Clinton,
Notify the Officers of a Heavy Loss, While Stores at Evansville and Milton Were Also Looted, Perhaps
All by the Same Gang.

Thieves with a penchant for knives
and guns seem to be making a circuit in Rock county. Three stores have been looted, the last one of which the police were informed being C. P.
Drake & Co's. of Clinton. Here the burglars stole one double barrel breach loading shot gun, one Harrington & Richardson double action revolver, one bull dog revolver and twenty-five dozen pocket knives of the Simmons Hardware company and Hibbard Spencer, Bartlett & company's manufacture. The value of the goods was considerable and the firm have notified the Janesville officers.

The robbers are perhaps the same
that raided the stores of Crosley & Maxson, of Milton, getting $100
worth of similar goods and Baker's hardware store at Evansville, where they got $200 worth of knives, etc.
The Milton burglary was committed Friday night and the Evansville robery Saturday night. It is thought that the thieves went from Clinton to Milton and from there to Evansville.

OLD FASHIONS.

The Woman of Advanced Ideas Wants Novelty.

We hear a great deal about old fashions coming back again, says an English writer, but those who are so fortunate as to have stored away in cedar closets and packing trunks any of the genuine old time garments, those that were actually worn by their foremothers, need but a single glance to show them that there is a very decided difference between the present day and the real antiques. While we have in a general way many of the old styles, they are so modified, reconstructed, revamped and modernized that, except in the most comprehensive fashion, they cannot be called revivals. The advanced woman does not take kindly to any of the old fashioned extreme styles. Something more adaptable has to be provided for her, and it is therefore incumbent upon designers to prepare something that will be acceptable to this very large contingent, for the woman of advanced ideas is just now very largely in the majority. Even though her husband, father, brother or the one of all others whom she carries in her mind's eye if not in her heart may dissuade her from entering the ranks of the suffragists, she still is a very long way toward emancipation from the frivolities of fashion. Thus extreme styles, while they are looked at and talked about and admired for their novelty, are valued chiefly as suggestions.

PANNIER COSTUME.

A charming modification of the bouffant pannier fashion is shown in the accompanying sketch of a ball gown. The skirt, which is of cream muslin, sprinkled with blue, is made over a cream taffeta lining and has a narrow trimming of plain cream muslin around the foot. The full bodice, panniers and sleeves are of plain muslin, and the wrinkled belt, which has sash ends tied behind, and the bows of the panniers are of blue ribbon, which also trims the sleeves.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Plainly Inefficient.

"Fine set running this government," said Mr. Hicard disgustedly.

"What's the kick now?"

"Everything. Just look at the postage stamps, for instance. The idea of making reds worth twice as much as blues!"—Cincinnati Tribune.

HOPE FOR THE HAIRLESS.

Professor Birkholz, of Chicago, Gives Hope to Those Afflicted with Baldness—A "No Cure, No Pay" Treatment.

Professor G. Birkholz, of Chicago, the eminent German specialist, who for years has devoted his time and talent to the study of the hair follicles, and who has evolved the most successful treatment for baldness the world has ever known.

He will carefully examine each case and candidly inform the inquirer whether his baldness can be cured and the hair be restored. These examinations are made without charge. In all cases where there are any hair follicles remaining undestroyed by age or disease the professor will undertake a cure, and if he does not effect a restoration of the hair he will ask no pay.

The remedy is an imported one, and the treatment given by the professor is his own, and cures where all others fail. If your case has been pronounced incurable do not take it as a final answer until you have seen Professor Birkholz and received his opinion.

Many persons have small bald spots through the hair. These increase in area and in time produce baldness. In such cases the hair follicles need nourishment. Prompt treatment will bring the hair into activity and restore the hair. The success that has attended Professor Birkholz everywhere enables him to give a positive opinion in each case presented to him. Those who are bald or are threatened with baldness should not delay treatment, but call upon the professor at once, 1011 Masonic Temple Chicago.

Hand this notice to any first-class drug store and he will get the remedy for you at once, if he has not got it in stock.

SENTIMENT AND ACTION.

She Took Him Into Camp by Reminding Him of His Duty.

He was a nice fellow and she was a nice girl; he was 35 and she 28, and the margin of procrastination was narrowing. He didn't seem to notice it, but she did; women are always more acute in such matters than men are; why they are has never been accurately and satisfactorily determined. It was about the eighteen hundredth gloaming they had watched the purple shadows and so forth in and still he had not hit the mark.

"I think so much of you," he said tenderly.

"Yes?" questioningly.

"Yes, I think of you always."

She shook her head impatiently.

"Don't you like for me to?" he queried.

"No, don't," she responded in a petulant mood.

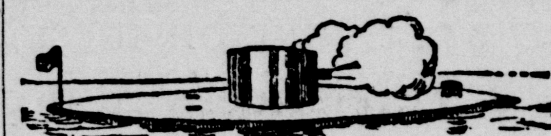

He tried to take her hand.

"Why don't you?" he asked, with a tremulous touch of fear in his voice.

She braced up nobly.

"Because," she said, "it is not the man who thinks, but the man who acts, that wins victories."

When he was 36 and she 29 they were Mr. and Mrs.

SMALL BUT EFFECTIVE.

Was the little Monitor that met the Merrimack at Hampton Roads. So too are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, effective in conquering the enemy—disease. When you take a pill it's an important point to have them small—provided they have equal strength and efficacy. You find what you want in these little liver pills of Dr. Pierce. They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge old-fashioned pills. What you want when you're "all out of sorts"—grumpy, thick-headed and take a gloomy view of life, is these Pellets to clear up your system and start your liver into healthful action. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved and cured. Put up in sealed glass vials, and always fresh and reliable.

JAMES WILLIAM CRAIG, Esq., of Georgetown, Ky., says: "My wife thinks your little 'Pellets' are the greatest pills out."

HERE THEY COME!

For weeks our store has been in that condition so happily described by Charles Lamb when riding in the stage. A fellow thrust his face in and inquired, "Are you full inside?" Lamb answered, "I don't know about the other fellows, but that last piece of pie did the business for me." So now, to him that hath, it is being added. THE NEW TARIFF AT WORK.

The democratic tariff gives us free lumber, and the promising of a great cheapening of building material and other wood products. The new law has been in operation for days,

and already the Canadians are taking advantage of it. The Quebec government has begun the imposition of a duty on such products when exported

into the United States, and on pulp

wood the Canadian export duty has been raised from twenty-five to forty cents a cord. Lumber dealers in this country announce that they are not looking for a decline of prices. The profits will go however to the Quebec and Canadian governments instead of ours,

just as the profits of manufacturing

are being transferred from American to European pockets. The votes in Vermont and Maine show that the people of those states have got their eyes opened to the confidence game

that was played upon them in 1892.

IOWA'S FACTS.

Senator Allison's speech, grouping

the great facts about the progress and wealth of Iowa, does not leave populism or free-tradism much standing ground on that side of the argument.

After being identified as an agricultural state with thirty years of the protective tariff the people of Iowa

have given themselves a position of independence enjoyed by few regions

in any part of the world. If the theories of the free trader were true the citizens of Iowa would have been blest to exhaustion before this. The farms of that state yield more wealth every year than all the gold and silver mines

of the United States. The people of Iowa are proud of their strong position, and find in the facts Senator

Allison has presented a truth which lying sophistry cannot overturn.

OTHER WOOL GROWERS PROSPER.

Minister Ceballos of the Argentine republic says that the new tariff bill

has greatly stimulated the wool industry in this country. Raw wool has advanced heavily. He finds our consumption of the coarse wools will this year probably amount to $6,000,000

worth against $2,000,000 last year;

and the fine wools in proportion.

New steamship lines are being projected to handle the new trade and

pour immense quantities of South

American wool into the United States markets.

Bees in the Mammoth Cave.

"Mammoth cave in Kentucky is getting to be a gigantic bee hive," said

A. R. Lewis. "The last time I went through this big hole in the ground I took both the long and short routes,

as they are called by the guides. At several places there were rather too

many bees for me to feel entirely comfortable, although I was not attacked by any of them. If the cave should be explored for honey some rich finds would undoubtedly be made. The bees are increasing constantly. In fact, while I have visited the cave frequently for several years,

it has only been about two years since

I knew that they were there, and this year it would be impossible for a visitor not to know it."

ATHLETICS BEATEN IN SHULLSBURG

Nine Men, the Empire and Fate Were Combined Against Them.

The Athletic ball club went to Shullsburg yesterday and played a game with a Galena-Dubuque combination. The Athletics lost the game

by a score of 9 to 7.

"The Shullsburg people had arranged the game, offering to pay the expenses of both clubs besides giving the winners $50," said one of the Janesville boys. "At the same time

the managers had decreed that Galena-

Dubuque should have the money, consequently it was uphill work for us

from start to finish, but we came very near winning against the combine.

There was a large crowd out to see the game. I guess every one in the town was out, and they were wild

with excitement."

Nature's Own Fly Catcher.

"I remember seeing a very singular plant in South Carolina last summer," said Colonel H. P. Harris of Baltimore to the Globe-Democrat

man, "and I was told that it only grows in that state. It is called the fly trap, on account of the extraordinary manner in which it catches flies. In shape it greatly resembles a tulip. During the day the leaves, which form the trap, are wide open,

but as soon as a fly touches any of the long hairs which grow within the leaves the trap suddenly closes

on the intruder and holds it fast

until its struggles are over, when it slowly opens again until closed by another victim. The plant I saw had ten or twelve dead flies in its trap that had been caught in this manner."

A Revolving Car Fender.

A unique trolley car fender is proposed by a Boston inventor. He has taken the large revolving brushes

from a street sweeper and placed them

in such a position under the car that a person who happens to fall in front of the car will be practically swept

BEFORE SLEEPING.

Now is the dead of night, and I must sleep.
But first, my soul, if thou dost aught recall
Wherein thou hast done ill, I bid thee weep
And pray God's tender mercy on thee fall.
Purge thyself clean of whatsoe'er bitter hate
Thou hast for them that wrong thee; sink
thy pride.
Nor deem thou standest in a higher state
Than those whom God thy happier chance denied.
Be all for heaven; think life draws near the close;
Give to repentance thy last conscious breath;
For more and more this mortal weakness grows
That pledges thee to take the form of death
And sleep awhile. What if in dreams the door
Of life should shut, and thou return no more!
—Caryl Battersby in Good Words.

THE WITCH OF YELL.

The witch sat placidly sewing in her doorway when I saw her first, looking like nothing in the world but a sonnet of Zetland of some 40 odd years, with a fresh color and a thick coil of raven black hair half hidden by her headgear, a bright blue handkerchief spotted with white. I gave her good morning and asked her if she would give me a glass of water and a bannock of oatcake, as I had been walking for some hours and was both hungry and thirsty.

"And welcome," she said, with the pretty Shetland courtesy, "if you be from Ireland, mistress."

"I am Irish," I said, "but wouldn't you give an oatcake to an English woman, my friend? No?" as she shook her head resolutely. "And how is that?"

"No food of my baking will pass Scots or Southern lips," she said harshly. "Sit ye down," pointing to her own stool. "Ye're fair tired out, mistress."

I laughed faintly as I accepted the seat. "I have been trying to walk away from myself," I said, "and though I've tramped through a whole forenoon I haven't done it yet."

"Ah!" she said, smiling a little—only with her lips, for her eyes kept their steady sadness. "It's a far way you have to go, mistress, and you must walk by night 'stead o' day. You're married," glancing down at my ungloved hands. "Have ye ever borne a child?"

I looked down at my black dress and nodded silently. The woman drew in her breath sharply as if she were hurt at heart. "Aye," she said, "so have I, and lost it too. Poor lass!" And to my intense astonishment she stopped and kissed me once and again. "How old was he?" she went on gravely, taking no heed at the wonder in my face. "Mine was a man grown, but yours must ha' been but a bairn. Ye have the look of a bairn yourself."

"Have I?" I said, with a dreary laugh. "An old bairn, I'm afraid. My boy was 7 years old."

"Aye, and your man's alive? Do I know your man, and what for does he let you come here to dree your weird alone?"

"My man knows it's the kindest thing he could do," I said. "And I think perhaps you know him," I added, a little proudly. "Nearly every one in the islands knows Hector MacKenneth."

"Aye, do they. He's a man!" the witch said emphatically, as she came out of the cottage with a plate of bannocks and a big cup of milk. "And there's never a soul in the islands but he has done a kind turn or spoken a kind word to—even to me."

"Why 'even to you?'" I asked. "My husband has a great respect for you. He told me you were the wisest woman in the islands, Lief."

"Did he, now? And I his brother's wife!" the witch said musingly. I started. "Whose wife? Not Ronald MacKenneth's—Ronald that died in England?"

"That same Ronald," she said quietly. "He died in the south, I know, and some Southern brought the news to MacKenneth himself. But he lies buried away in the south, I heard say. Do ye know where, Mistress MacKenneth?"

"No; I wish I could tell you, poor soul," I said pitifully. "I wish I could help you."

"My bonny Ronald," she said, looking out to the blue, tumbling waves of the sound, her eyes grave and sad and her voice very low. "It's little ye thought of me, but on the day we were handfasted and the day ye lay a-dying." Then she bent down a little and looked sharply into my face.

"Did ever any one in the islands say to ye that we two were not man and wife? Did ever MacKenneth himself?"

"Never MacKenneth," I said honestly.

"Others have, though." She looked sharply at me again, then caught my hand in hers and dragged me up from my seat. "Come wi' me, ye wife of the MacKenneth, and I'll show you what handfasting means to a woman."

I drew my cloak round me with my free hand, and we went slowly together over the scattered rocks and sand and down a little grassy slope, till we stood in front of an upright stone with a round hole in its center.

"There," said the witch, still holding my hand fast in hers, "there's where we were married—my man and I. See ye here, Eleanor MacKenneth, do ye love your man, or liked ye your first lad best?"

I tried in my heart to the dead and gone Oscar to forgive me, and then I looked the woman fairly in the eyes and answered her, "I love MacKenneth best."

"Where were ye married? In Kirk, or course?"

"In Kirk, ye. We were married in a London church," I said; "the Church of St. Stephen."

"Kirk Stephen, aye? Well, this is Kirk Odin, where thousands have been made man and wife in their day. Go ye nearer to the stone, wife of MacKenneth, and you shall be married there too, if you're no' afraid."

"Do I look afraid?" I said, with a smile, and she smiled back at me.

"Put your hand—closed so—through the hole in the stone." I obeyed with some difficulty, for the hole was unevenly cut, and its edges were jagged.

"Now," said the witch, "open your hand and hold it so, and now say after me."

I hesitated a moment and then repeated after her. "In the name of the One Eyed, the name of Odin, I hold thee and have thee through this life, and that life, and all lives to follow. I call thee and keep thee, my hand for the witness, my lips for thy kissing, my strength for thy weakness, my tears for thy sorrow, my breast for thy head when thou bounne thee to sleeping, my life for thy calling." Then she stopped and looked vaguely at me and beyond me, and I finished the oath with words that rose in my mind, though I had never heard them before:

"My life for thy calling, my death for thy living. Hear, Thor and hear Odin and Hector MacKenneth." Then I drew my hand out from the hole and turned to the witch, but the next minute I saw that her thoughts were not with me or with this material world at all, and I went softly away, leaving her standing with her back to the sea and her eyes fixed on the great stone, listening intently and vainly, with her hand against her ear.

So I saw her the next time I passed her neat cottage. She had been gathering some herbs, and now she stood listening again, with the herbs held tightly to her breast. This time I stopped to speak to her. "Lief MacKenneth," I said quietly, "are you not going to give your sister the morn's greeting?"

She gave me a quick, wild, wondering look, and her eyes filled with sudden sunshine. "God bless you for the MacKenneth," she said earnestly, "and for the sisterhood. But you must not stop with me today."

"Why?" I said. "We are not going to have a storm, Lief."

"Are we no?" she laughed. "Woman, dear, you're no Zetlander. There'll be a storm on us inside of an hour, and a black wind strong enough to blow the heart out o' your breast, or!"

"Or the dead out of their graves," I said, with meaning, and her face lighted up again.

"Maybe," she muttered, "maybe. Now go home, ye wife of MacKenneth and dream o' your man and the bairns to be. Oh, aye," as I drew back, flushing hotly. "I'm not a witch for nothing, and I can see your shadows round you, Eleanor MacKenneth, two, three and four. Now"—she turned and caught my hands in hers and kissed me on lips and cheek and forehead with eager, close kisses.

"There, now, go home, Eleanor woman, and shut the storm out. When do you go to your own home, soon?"

"Next week," I answered. "I told Hector to expect me on Thursday."

"Aye, and a fine, calm journey to you, dear heart. But I'll see you again. Go now, and goodbye, woman dear."

I heard very little of the storm that night, for I slept as soundly as a child, and when, toward morning, I began to dream my dreams were pleasant enough, though they were all of Lief. The last dream of all was the one which made the deepest impression on me. It was of Lief again, but as I had never seen her. Young and with a wonderful shy gladness in her eyes, she stood at the door of her cottage in the driving rain, with her hand fast in the hands of a man with fair hair and bold blue eyes, a younger edition of my own husband. I saw them kiss each other, and then I woke.

"Ronald has come back to her," I said to myself as I rubbed my drowsy eyes, and somehow I was not in the least surprised or grieved when mine hostess came in later on in the morning to tell me that the storm had wrecked half a score of houses and had blown the witch's cabin out to sea. Nothing was ever heard of the witch herself, but after a little while my husband and I had a pine wood cross put up close to the stone of Odin, and on it we wrote the two names, Lief and Ronald. And in the small church of Kirk Harold, where Lief was christened, we put up a tablet to the glory of God and in loving memory of Ronald MacKenneth and Lief, his wife.—Macmillan's Magazine.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A Story of How Coolness Saved a Panic.

"The presence of mind displayed by the members of a small theatrical troupe who were playing in a frame building in one of the mining towns of Colorado last winter, struck me as being almost heroic," said Clement Sawyer of Cincinnati. "I had struck the town on business and to pass away an hour in the evening had looked into the little hall to see a traveling company give a representation of 'The Danites.' The performance was by no means bad and I was getting quite interested in the adventures of the heroine, when all at once I noticed the stage manager beckon the star to the screens which served as wings. He whispered something hurriedly and a second later the star fell on the stage as though in a faint. The curtain was rung down and the stage manager, coming to the front, stated that owing to the sudden and dangerous illness of the leading actor the performance could not go on. A free entertainment would be given the following evening to make up for the shortening of the play. The audience began to file out quietly and the hall was nearly half empty when a burst of fire came through the curtain. The shanty, for it was little more, had caught fire behind the scenes and the stage manager's idea was to get out the bulk of the audience before a panic set in. He succeeded so well that, although, of course, the building was burned to the ground, no one was hurt and the men who had been cheering the actors a few minutes before helped to save the adjoining buildings by stretching wet blankets over the roofs."

W. P. Drop, croquist, Springfield Mass., writes: "Japanese Pile Cure has cured lady seven years afflicted; could not walk half mile in last three years; now walks any distance." Sold by S. J. Pitts' Pharmacy.

SEPARATE BODICES.

Accordian Plaiting Is More Popular Than Ever Before.

Accordian plaiting is more fashionable than ever this fall and is used for chemises, capes, panels, flounces, the lower part of draped and double skirts, and, in fact, for everything to which it can possibly be adapted. Ruffles and puffings of all sorts are equally favored, and run riot in especial on elaborate silk waists intended for house and theater wear. Figured and changeable silks, lace, chiffon and mouseline de sole are all employed in these dainty and becoming garments, the manufacture of which affords scope for the ingenuity of the deft home dressmaker, who is often able to make a fresh and pretty bodice from the best parts of a worn evening gown. More than one kind of goods being admissible in the same garment, there is an opportunity to use stray breadths of silk and pieces of lace and velvet left over when last season's costumes were made or picked up at a bargain on the remnant counter. It is always wise to look through the heap of short lengths of silk, velvet and fine fancy dress goods offered for sale at a reduced price, as there may often be found pieces large enough to make a pair of sleeves or collar, cuffs and skirt panel or other sort of trimming for a gown of plain material.

An old blouse of changeable silk, such as almost every woman possesses, may be ripped, turned and used as the lining of a black mouseline de sole bodice, these being in vogue at present. The shifting gleam of rose or green seen through the thin black tissue is very effective, while the fullness of the latter goods prevents the worn places in the lining from being apparent.

The sketch shows a reception bodice of rose colored broche silk. This material forms the bolero and puffed elbow sleeves, while the vest, girle, eravat, collar and sleeve bands are of cream and rose changeable silk. A basque of lace falls from the girle, while a deep lace flounce finishes the sleeves.

A WOMAN'S LIFE.

SOME THINGS MEN DON'T CONSIDER
Thousands of Women Suffer Daily for Years without Complaining.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]
Men cannot know the sensibilities hidden in the delicate organisms of women.

They suffer without why, and die the only for want of that relief is so

Lydia E. Pinkham forever stand

—guest in the love of suffering women.

Because she discovered the cause of woman's weakness and suffering, and found the means to remove it.

Diseases of the Uterus and ovarian troubles are most universal; you can see their ravages in pale faces; it is indicated by halting steps, dizziness, faintness, irritability, melancholy, extreme lassitude, nervousness, sleeplessness, and disturbances of the stomach.

You will hear your friends speak of the dreadful "backache," the crushing sense of "bearing down."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for twenty years has saved women from all this. Hear this woman speak:—

"No man ever suffered a single pang like unto woman."

"Women, therefore, gladly turn to a woman for sympathy, counsel, and help in their peculiar troubles."

Lydia E. Pinkham deserves the confidences shown her by thousands. Her Vegetable Compound has done more for women than any other remedy.

"The great cause of woman's misery is in her womb. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound goes direct to the source of trouble, drives out disease, and cures backache, fainting, despondency, bloating, ovarian troubles, and leucorrhoea."

"I would have been in my grave if I had not taken Mrs. Pinkham's medicines."

—MRS. HANNAH HYDE, Bethel, Ind.

BRIEF BITS OF HUMOR.

A Reliable Domestic.

"Here is a note I want you to hand to Mrs. Livaly when you are sure nobody is looking," said a New York society man to a colored servant at a fashionable Fifth avenue residence. "Yes, sah," replied Sambo, showing his ivorys. "But, mind you don't whisper a word to a living soul." "You kin jess rest easy about dat, boss. Yisterday I fetched dot as same woman a letter from anudder gemman, an' I ain't said a word 'bout it to nobody yet. You kin jess rest easy 'bout my opening my mouf."—Tammany Times.

She Respected Sorrow.

"Is the head of the family in?" asked the woman with something to sell. "No," replied the tired-looking man with wilted side whiskers; "she left last week. But the man at the intelligence office says he hopes to find one that we'll suit inside of a week or two." And the woman with something to sell was so touched with pity that she went away without another word.—Washington Star.

The Artist Has Grown Wise.

"Does your artist friend paint portraits true to life?" "He did at first, but he has learned better." "Indeed?" "Yes, the first two or three commissions he executed were so true to life that the sitters refused to take the pictures."—Baltimore Telegram.

A Similar Feeling.

Husband—No, Mary; you can never accuse me of meanness. I paid twenty-five dollars for that hat and seventy-five dollars for that dress. I always like to see my wife well dressed. Wife (kindly)—And I like to see you look well, too, Henry. Give me that hat, and I'll touch up those rusty spots with this shoe-blackening.—Puck.

Could Not Locate Them.

She—While you were gone, darling, I kissed your picture every day. Did you ever feel those kisses when I did so? He (with a sop to his conscience)—I often felt kisses, but I could not say whether it was at the time you were kissing my picture.—N. Y. World.

A Fashionable Doll.

Lady—I want a doll for my little girl here. Clerk—What kind of a doll does the little girl want?

Little Girl—It must have teeth like mamma's that you can take out, and hair that you can hang on the chair at night.—Alex Sweet, in Texas Sitings.

A Fatal Error.

Nodd—What did Jagway move so quickly for? Todd—He found there wasn't a saloon within five blocks.—Brooklyn Life.

The Meeting and the Parting. They kissed when they met, they kissed when they parted, And went from each other serenely, wholehearted, From doubt and suspicion and misery free, For they were a couple of women, you see. —N. Y. Press.

TOO MUCH FOR HER.

Servant—Yis, sorr, Mrs. Jones is in. What's yer name, sorr? Visitor—Prof. Vandersplinkenheimer.

Servant—Och! Sure, ye'd better go roight in and take it wid ye.—Judge.

Never Seold.

Mother—It is time to make some inquiries about that young man who now calls to see Clara.

Father—He has not been coming more than a week.

Mother—No matter. I heard Clara scolding little Johnny for peeking through keyholes.—Good News.

And He Turned Away.

"You can have a square meal," said the Maryland farmer, "if you will come out in the back yard and turn the grindstone for me while you're waiting."

"I'm not that kind of a crank, sir," replied the forager, stiffly.—Chicago Tribune.

Letting Him Down Easy.

Mr. Oldbeau—I admit that there is—er—some difference in our ages, but think of the advantages of such a wealthy alliance.

Miss Youngthing—It cannot be, Mr. Oldbeau, but I will always be a granddaughter to you.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Utilitarian.

Daughter (pleadingly)—I am sure you will like George. He is the most conscientious young man I ever knew.

Father (a business man)—Then don't you dare to marry him! You'll starve to death!—N. Y. Weekly.

His Idea.

Johnny—Pa, what does it mean in the book when it says: "The woman dissolved into tears?"

His Pa (of wide experience)—It means that she asked for a new dress and didn't get it.—Chicago Record.

A Guilty Conscience.

Edith—I think Tom Manners is a flirt.

Maude—How so?

Edith—Why, after I've refused him only three times he is making love to that odious May Takem!—Truth.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

GREAT FUN.

Thrills With the Aid of a Light Pole and Trolley Track.

Brooklyn boys have a new amusement. One boy can enjoy the sport all by himself or several youngsters may take part in the fun at the same time. When a solo part is played the lad, having fastened the wire about one of the Edison electric illuminating poles, takes an end in one hand and places his disengaged hand upon a trolley track. So he establishes a circuit and experiences a slight electric shock.

When several boys wish to be shocked at the same time, they simply join hands and one touches the pole and the other the track, and in that way all are more or less shocked.

"I understand how the lads get the electricity," said W. H. Freeman, acting secretary of the Edison company. The trolley car tracks are all grounded, and the boys, by making a circuit with our pillars, which of course are of metal, get a slight part of the current. Our pole is not responsible for this state of things, however."

There is a big policeman in that district who does not believe the current is slight. He tried it the other evening, and when he experienced the shock he jumped three feet into the air and awakened the echoes in the avenue with his cries.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

"Hail to the Chief."

This is the title of an old song. The balance is "who in triumph advances." The public, the press and the medical profession chant this refrain as especially applicable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, chief among American remedies and preventatives for malaria, constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervousness, unequal sleep, rheumatic twinges, and the troubles incident to advanced age. It is also incident to advanced age. It is also universally recognized as a reliable tonic and appetizer. As a family medicine particularly suitable to emergencies it has no equal. The nervous, feeble seek its aid, and the happiest results follow. The convalescent, the aged and the infirm derive infinite benefit from its use. Against the influences of impure air, bad water, unaccustomed food, overwork and exposure it is a genuine preventative.

Not a Difficult Matter.

A certain judge who is blessed with a tremendous head of hair, which is generally in a state of wild disorder, was questioning a youthful witness, to make sure that he comprehended the character and importance of the oath he was about to take. "Boy," he said, with his severest and most magisterial manner, "do you feel sure that you could identify me after six months? Now be careful. Think before you speak." "Well, your honor," replied the boy after a prolonged survey of the judge's portly figure and rugged features, "I ain't sure, but I think I could if you wasn't to comb your hair."
